HOBART TOWN.

Arrivals. April 9. Maseppa, brig, 189 tons, Baggin, from Adelaide via Victoria, with sheep and sundries; Union, schooner, 74 tons, Davidson, from Geelong, with sheep; Rebecca, schooner, 74 tons, Reynolds, from Geelong, with cattle; Mariner, ship, 683 tons, Harland, from Macao, with 393 coolies, and about 50 tons, general cargo; Dove, schooner, 53 tons, Clymonts, from Melbourne, in ballast; Titan, iron schooner, 160 tons, Ferguson, from Otago, New Zealand; 10, Kuvi, brig, 86 tons, Johnson, from Auckland, with timber; Selma, American barque, 407 tons, Smith, from California via Panama, in ballast.

The Phantom, from Adelaide the 5th instant, encountered heavy gales from the eastward nearly all the passage. The Thomas and Henry was to sail in a few days after her. She spoke the Sir John Byng, brig, from Launceston, bound to Adelaide, off Green Cape, on Tuesday last. In entering the Heads last night she ran foul of the barque Camilla, lying at anchor below the Light-ship, and carried away the barque's jib and flying-jib booms, also the cap of the bowsprit; the brig does not appear to have sustained any damage, and no blame can be attached to her officers or commander, the night being dark and squally.

The Nautilus, barque, Captain Dryden, was to follow the Vixen, for this port, from Launceston.

Passengers per Camilla, from Port Lyttelton the 4th April: Lord Frederick Montagu; Mr. Stapelton, Mr. and Mrs. Stoddart, Mr. John Brown, Mr. Thomas Brown, Mr. F. W. Pickering.

Captain Cannell, of the Speed, informs us that the English mail for January had arrived at Panama four or five days previous to his sailing (16th February) for Sydney; that he had seen English papers to the 15th January; and that fears were entertained in England and New York as to the safety of the steamship Atlantic, from New York to Liverpool, with a number of passengers, she having been twenty-eight days out, and nothing heard of her.

We have been requested to state that the Packet sails direct for Auckland, and not via Newcastle, as previously intended.

The Fanny Fisher, from Newcastle, arrived at Adelaide on the 4th April.

The Shamrock, steamer, from Melbourne, was entering Launceston, on the 13th instant, the day the Vixen sailed.

The Essington reports having spoken the Rebecca Jane, brig, from Newcastle, bound to Adelaide, on Monday, off Cape Howe. At Port Fairy, the schooner Lillias was loading for Sydney; the brig Triton, and schooner Margaret and Agnes, were both loading for Melbourne.

The Hirondelle, for Sydney, sailed from Circular Head two days before the William and James. The Bandicoot, hence, arrived on the 14th, and the William, schooner, would leave for this port on or about the 17th instant. Yesterday morning, off the Heads, in a squall, the William and James split her foresail in hauling it up; at the same time a schooner in company (supposed to be the Mary Stewart, from Moreton Bay,) had her top-gallant mast carried away.

Chinese Emigrants.—The ship Mariner, 683 tons, arrived in harbour yesterday from Macao. She is bound for Lima, South America, and has 393 coolies on board, engaged as servants in Lima. The Mariner has put into this harbour to obtain supplies of water and provisions. Four of the coolies died on board from a species of cholera. The Coromandel, of London, 600 tons, is engaged by the same parties, and for the same purpose, and may be expected here in a few days.—Hobart Town Britannia.

THE QUARTER'S REVENUE.

The Abstract of the Colonial Revenue for the quarter ended 31st March, 1851, compared with that for the corresponding quarter of last year, shows very favourable results. The amounts, exclusively of the Port Phillip District, were as follows:—

General Revenue.

31st March,	1850	£63,033
	1851	71,811
Increase, being 14 per cent.		£ 8,778

Crown Revenue.

31st March,	1850	£10,537
	1851	17,227
Increase, being 63½ per cent.		£ 6,690

Total Receipts.

31st March,	1850	£73,570
	1851	89,038
Increase, being 21 per cent		£15,468

The several heads of the General Revenue of last quarter, with the amounts and rates of increase or decrease, were as under:—

	Amount.	Increase.	Per ct.
Customs	£36,951	£1,000	2·8
Colonial Spirits	1,261	782	163·3
Port and Harbour Dues	1,677	469	38·8
Land Sales	6,256	6,256
Assessment on Stock	13,830	1,587	13·0
Licenses	505	200	65·6
Postage	4,200	278	7·1
Sale of Government Property	822	652	383·5
Miscellaneous	1,111	410	58·6
		Decrease.
Rents exclusive of Land	938	591	38·6
Auction Duty	703	543	43·4
Fines and Forfeitures	626	75	10·9
Fees of Office	2,188	1,595	42·2
Reimbursements	744	61	7·6

It will be seen that in all the principal heads of regular revenue there has been a very considerable increase.

The increase under the head of Customs accrued thus:—

Increase—
Duties on Spirits imported	£3,098
Ad Valorem Duties on Foreign Goods imported	732
	£3,830
Decrease—
Duties on Tobacco imported	2,830
Net Increase, as above	£1,000

The increase in the produce of duties on spirits imported is at the rate of more than fifteen and a half per cent.; and that in the produce of ad valorem duties nearly nineteen per cent. In the December quarter also these two items had largely increased, the former twenty-six and the latter twenty per cent. The decrease in the produce of tobacco duties is upwards of twenty-three per cent., having been eight per cent. in the previous quarter.

Colonial distillation, which had fallen almost to nothing, is rapidly reviving. In the December quarter the revenue derived from it had increased thirty-two per cent.; last quarter the increase is shown above to have been a hundred and sixty-three per cent.

The amounts and proportions of revenue received in the March quarter from spirits and tobacco and from all other sources were as under:—

		Per cent.
Spirits and Tobacco	£33,553	46·6
All other sources	38,258	53·4
	£71,811	100 0

Thus nearly one-half of the whole General Revenue was derived from the two items of spirits and tobacco.

It will be observed that of the increase of the General Revenue (£8,778), the proceeds of Land Sales constituted the large proportion of £6,256.

This is the first quarter in which the revenue from Postage could be compared with the corresponding quarter of the previous year under the uniform rates of charge; and it is satisfactory to find that notwithstanding the special outlay in stamps which swelled the revenue of the first quarter under the new system, there is shown an increase of seven per cent.

The principal item of decrease under the head of Fees of Office, is that of Commissioners of Disputed Boundaries, which is less than last year by nearly £1500, or upwards of ninety per cent.

The heads of increase and decrease in the Crown Revenue were as follows:—

	Amount	Increase.	Per cent.
Land Sales	£12,495	£7,740	162·9
Land and Immigration Deposits	100	90	900·0
Occupation Licenses	1,189	408	52·3
Licenses to cut Timber	211	165	358·7
Miscellaneous	223	210	—
		Decrease.
Quit-rents	£1,138	£1,492	56·7
Rents of Quarries, &c.	23	16	40·0
Clergy and School Estates	1,847	415	18·4

When are the public to be enlightened as to the revenue and its appropriation for the year 1850?

The Weather.—We are in hopes that the fine rains of the last two days have been general. On Tuesday night and Wednesday morning there were some soaking showers in the Cowpasture district.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

Thursday.

The Speaker took the chair at half-past three.

PETITION.

Mr. DANGAR presented a petition from certain house and landholders of the Electoral Districts of Northumberland and Hunter, residing within the Police District of Macdonald, praying the appointment of Jind's Public House, at the Village of St. Albans, on the left bank of the Macdonald River, within the county of Northumberland, as the polling place for the portion of the said Electoral District in which petitioners reside. Received.

CITY RATES BILL.

The House went into Committee for the consideration of this Bill.

The Bill was simplified by the striking out of all clauses but those giving the actual power of making the assessment, &c.

Mr. NICHOLS stated that it was proposed to introduce three new clauses - one to enable the citizens to re-elect any gentleman filling the office of Mayor; a second to remedy certain omissions in the late Corporation Act, as to the taking of the poll by Aldermen; and a third, to enable the Council to carry out the provisions of the Sewerage Act.

Progress was then reported and leave obtained for the Committee to sit again to-day.

CATTLE SLAUGHTERING LAWS BILL.

The House went into Committee upon the above Bill.

Clause 1, enacting that all cattle dying from disease should be removed a mile from the slaughter-house and destroyed, having been read,

Mr. NICHOLS proposed to amend this provision by giving permission to boil down these animals at any establishment not being a place for the sale or slaughter of animals intended for human food.

Mr. MARTIN explained that it was not intended to prevent the animals from being converted into tallow, but to prevent them from being skinned and cut up at the slaughter-houses where the same knives would be used for cutting up meat for sale.

Mr. WENTWORTH contended, that the Bill, as it then stood, was a mala fide one, inasmuch as it would not only prevent the butchers from deriving any profit from animals dying from the infectious disease now prevalent, but from those which died from any other cause. It would be a sufficient precaution to prevent by stringent enactments the sale of diseased meat for human food.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL pointed out the impossibility of defining the prevalent disease in such language as would sustain an information. The matter was of so much consequence to the community that the possibility of a loss being entailed upon a few butchers ought not to be placed in competition with it.

Mr. SUTTOR did not believe that the Bill was necessary, or if necessary that it would meet the alleged difficulty. A butcher could not attempt to pass off the flesh of any beast dying from disease, for the imposition must be detected at once, and the detection would cause ruin. Besides, it was impossible to procure any one to skin an animal which had died from the prevailing disease.

Dr. DICKSON: It had been shown by the investigations of the Board of Health, that diseased meat had actually been sold, and that some such precautionary measure as this was necessary.

Mr. JAMES MACARTHUR: Animals dying of this disease arrived at once, as had been shown from enquiry, at such a state of decomposition as to render its sale as good meat impossible. As the enquiry was still pending, it would be scarcely wise to legislate hastily in this way.

The SOLICITOR-GENERAL: The losses which the butcher might sustain would be charged by him upon his customers, and must not therefore be allowed to stand in the way of a precautionary measure, if any such measure was necessary. He did not say, however, that this was really the case.

Mr. NICHOLS explained, that his proposal in effect, was to make the wilful sale of diseased meat for human food, and for this purpose alone, a misdemeanor. He thought it unwise, however, to legislate upon a disease as yet but imperfectly understood.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY thought that some legislation upon this subject was necessary, but that the present proposals were too stringent, and too highly penal. It would be better to define the disease alluded to, as the only one which should warrant proceedings under this Act. This might be done by referring to the recital in the preamble as to the existence of "some malignant disease which rendered animals not only unfit for human food, but also extremely dangerous to handle, unless with the greatest care."

Mr. MARTIN contended that it would be utterly impossible to define the disease which at present prevailed, and expressed his willingness to so modify this measure as to permit the animals to be converted into tallow. The punishments were not too stringent for an offence against the public health. No pecuniary considerations should be allowed to have weight in discussing a measure of this nature.

Mr. NICHOLS did not believe that there was necessity to legislate further on the subject. It was at present an indictable offence to expose diseased meat for sale, and they had not sufficient information to legislate more specifically.

Mr. JONES expressed a similar opinion, and contended also that there was no proof as to the allegations in the preamble being true.

Mr. SUTTOR now moved that the Bill might be reported to the House, and leave asked for the Committee to sit again in six months.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL opposed the amendment.

Mr. WENTWORTH contended that the present law was sufficiently stringent to meet the alleged difficulties.

The SOLICITOR-GENERAL was of a similar opinion, and contended also that the Bill itself would be insufficient to meet the evils which were said to exist. The danger which the butchers themselves incurred in cutting up these animals would also prevent them from doing so.

After some further discussion, the ATTORNEY-GENERAL proposed as a further amendment to defer the consideration of the Bill in order to take evidence as to the disease.

The Committee then divided, upon Mr. SUTTOR'S amendment—for rejecting the Bill—with the following result,—

VICTORIA ELECTORAL BILL.

The further consideration of this Bill was postponed until to-day.

NEW SOUTH WALES ELECTORAL BILL.

The Council went into Committee on the New South Wales Electoral Bill.

The 12th clause, appointing collectors of the electoral lists for the City of Sydney, and fixing periods during which such lists should be exposed, was passed. The periods fixed were, for the collection of the lists, between the 1st June and the 28th June in every year, and for the exposure of the lists for the purpose of giving opportunity for claim or objection from the 1st to the 16th July.

The 13th clause, appointing chief constables to be collectors of the list in other districts, and fixing the same period for the performance of their duties, was passed.

Clause 14, empowering the union of two police districts, for the purposes of the Act, was passed.

Clause 15, giving the Governor power to appoint additional electoral officers, if necessary, was passed.

Clause 16, providing that Electoral Lists should be made out and hung up at the Court Houses, in each district, or in other conspicuous places, for a period of fourteen days, ending on the 14th day of July, in each year, was passed.

Clause 17, providing that claims to be placed on the Electoral Act, or objections to names on such lists, may be made on notice on or before the 15th day of July, in each year, was passed.

Clauses 18, 19, and 20, relative to the appointment of Revising Barristers, were struck out, and the necessery amendments were introduced into the other postponed clauses on this subject for giving the revision of the Electoral List in Sydney to the Mayor and Aldermen, and their revision in the country districts to Magistrates in Petty Sessions.

A proviso was also inserted for preventing any alderman or magistrate from assisting in the revision of the Electoral Lists, who might have declare himself a candidate for a seat in the Council.

The Courts of Revision were ordered to be held between the 1st and 31st days of August.

Clause 27, enacting that the revised lists in Sydney should be kept by the Town Clerk was adopted, an understanding being come to that these officers, both in Sydney and Melbourne, should be remunerated for their performance of the duty thus cast upon them. An amendment for the purpose was proposed by Mr. ALLEN, but was withdrawn upon the understanding already alluded to.

Clauses 28 and 29, as to the printing of the Electoral Lists, and the custody of lists in the country districts, were adopted.

The next of the postponed clauses was the 4th, which provided that the returning officer might require declarations against bribery, either of his own authority or at the requisition of the candidate or his agent. An amendment having been made at the suggestion of Mr. MOOR, requiring that the agents should be appointed by the candidates in writing, was passed.

Clause 43, enacting that no person should be qualified to vote until he had answered the questions – clause 44, declaring false answers to be punishable as perjury; and clause 45, enacting that no oaths than those provided by this Act should be necessary to prove or disprove qualification, were also passed.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL now proposed to insert the following new clause, "And in order the more effectually to prevent bribery and corruption at elections, be it enacted, that every elective member of the said Legislative Council, before he shall sit or vote in the said Council, shall make and subscribe, before and in the presence of the Speaker thereof, the following declaration:—'I, A. B., do solemnly and sincerely declare and testify, that I have neither by myself, friend, or agent of mine, given money, or any property whatever, to any elector of (naming the electoral district), for which I have been elected to serve as a member of this Legislative Council, nor have I given any money or property to any of the family, kindred, friends, agents, or dependants of any such elector, with a view to influence the vote or votes of any elector or electors of said (district); neither have I, with the view of influencing any vote or votes, held out to any such elector, or to the family, friends, agents, or dependants of any such elector, any promise of money or expectation of profit, reward, advancement, or enrichment, to himself or to any of his family, kindred, friends, agents, or dependants, in any shape whatever; nor have I used any threat, or in any wise endeavoured to intimidate any elector with any such view; neither have I authorised or sanctioned any person whatsoever to do any of such acts as aforesaid to influence any elector to vote for me; and I do solemnly declare that I have neither, by myself, or any friend, or agent of mine, treated, or cause to be treated any voter, or the friends of any voter; nor have I, directly or indirectly, caused to be supplied to any such voter, or the friends of any such voter, any meat, drink, lodging, or horse or carriage hire, or conveyance by steam or otherwise, whilst at such election, or whilst engaged in coming to or going from such election, nor have I paid or promised to pay any sum of money to any elector for acting in or joining any procession during such election, or before or after the same, nor have I paid for or promised to pay for, or sanctioned in any way whatever by my friends or agents, the keeping open, or allowing to be kept open, any public house, shop, booth, tent, or place of entertainment, whether liquor or refreshment of any kind be distributed at such place of entertainment or not; and I do solemnly declare that I do not intend to give any sum of money, property, or any other reward to any voter or any of his friends or agents for voting or withholding his vote, or for supplying meat, drink, &c., (here the above acts of alleged bribery were repeated); and I make this declaration without any equivocation or mental reservation whatsoever, according to the true intent and meaning of the same.'" The greater portion of these acts would, he said, under the 51st clause, unseat a member at the present time if these acts were complained of; but every member having been forced, whether willing or not, to incur some expenses no complaint was made. The certainty of having to make a solemn declaration, however, would prevent these things in future, and would be found a protection to the pocket of the candidate himself. It was necessary in this way to strike at the very root of the bribery and corruption which had hitherto prevailed to a most alarming extent.

Mr. MARTIN contended that even if this clause was passed, the House would not have power to compel any member to make this declaration.

Mr. NICHOLS was also of a similar opinion, and thought also that there was no great fear of bribery in future, as no person would be likely to give a farthing for a seat as a representative member in that House. At all events, no person who had experienced the weight of the duties which this office entailed would incur any expense for this purpose. The declaration, also, went too far. It would prevent any one from giving a glass of wine to an old friend, or, indeed, to any one; and, in fact, there was scarcely any act of the most ordinary nature during an election which would not expose him to risk, the corrupt object of the act not being necessarily a question to be first settled.

The SOLICITOR-GENERAL contended the Council had power to require this declaration under the provisions of the English Act, which required them to guard the proper conduct of elections. The declaration he thought necessary and desirable, but it might be necessary to modify it in some respects so as to prevent members from suffering from any act of which they were not fully cognisant.

Mr. WENTWORTH had been favourable to the clause in the first instance, as being one which would protect upright and honorable men in refusing to give way to the system of treating; while, on the other hand, it might introduce a better spirit among the electors. But he felt sure, upon mature consideration, that no man could go through the ordeal of a general election without breaking the letter and spirit of the declaration. If he became a candidate for Sydney, for instance, he could not give a glass of wine to any person having a vote in the city without being guilty of a breach, and there were a hundred other acts not really amounting to bribery which would have a similar effect. The bribery clause (51) as it at present stood would he thought be sufficient and there was an additional safeguard in the difficulty which would be found in procuring a sufficient number of candidates to hold seats under such a constitution.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL: His object in producing this clause was to introduce a better spirit into elections, leaving it to the representative members, for whose benefit also it had been devised, to accept or reject it as they thought best. He was satisfied that the House had the power to pass this clause, and as it did not in principle go beyond clause 31, he had never conceived that there could be any objection to make a declaration so necessary for their own protection.

The clause was then put to the House and was negatived without division.

Clause 5, which provided that no part of Sydney or of the towns, &c., should be deemed, for Electoral purposes, a part of the counties in which they were situated, was adopted after having been verbally amended for the sake of clearness.

The Committee now came to the Schedules. These Schedules however having been materially amended in consequence of the alteration in the districts, the amended Schedules were ordered to be printed for distribution.

Progress was then reported, and leave obtained to sit again to-day.

Council adjourned at half-past nine, until three o'clock this afternoon.

ANTI-TRANSPORTATION.

The following documents have been handed to us for publication:—

Adelaide, South Australia.

The Committee met yesterday at the office of J. B. Neales, Esq., Exchange Colonnade, preparatory to the intended forwarding of the memorials to Sydney, and on other matters of importance.

For the result of the meeting we beg to refer to an advertisement in another column. The following letter from Sydney, addressed to John Morphett, Esq., will be read with pleasure by all who appreciate the importance of the combined movement which is being made and the necessity of which is more than ever apparent, now that Her Majesty, influenced by the counsel of Earl Grey, has refused to accede to the prayer of the anti-transportation petition from Tasmania, as plainly intimated in a despatch from the noble Secretary of State recently received by Sir W. Denison.

The following is the letter referred to:—

Committee Room New South Wales Association for Preventing the Revival of Transportation, Sydney, March 3, 1851.

Sir,—I have to express the thanks of this Committee for your communication announcing that a public meeting would be held at Adelaide for the purpose of adopting the Australasian petition.

The Committee anticipate that South Australia will be among the most strenuous opponents of indirect transportation, since to her belong the merit of repudiating by her first Constitution the then prevalent colonial system of convict labour, and the distinction of establishing the only colony in the southern hemisphere exempt by Parliamentary guarantees from direct transportation.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
GILBERT WRIGHT,
Honorary Secretary.

John Morphett, Esq., M.L.C.,
Adelaide, South Australia.

At a meeting of the Committee of the Anti-Transportation Society, held at Mr. Neales's Office, Exchange Colonnade; present—J. B. Neales, George Elder, Peter Cumming, and John Morphett (chairman) – it was resolved that an advertisement be prepared by the Secretary, and inserted in all the papers, calling upon the public of South Australia to give furthur subscriptions to meet the expenses necessarily incurred in obtaining signatures to the Anti-Transportation memorials; and that the Secretary, Mr. B. Ross, should then call upon parties to obtain their subscriptions

That the Chairman be requested to address a letter to W. Westgarth, Esq., M.L.C., of Melbourne, in reply to one he wrote, addressed to the Secretary of the Anti-Transportation Society in Adelaide, suggesting that South Australia should send a delegate to the meeting of the League at Sydney, informing Mr. Westgarth that we cannot send a delegate, but that we sympathise most earnestly with the people of the older colonies in their efforts to free Australasia from the curse of convictism.

That the Chairman be requested to write to Gilbert Wright, Esq., at Sydney, to inform him that the petitions have been very numerously signed, and would be forwarded to the Sydney agents in London, Messrs. Lowe and Michie, by an early direct ship. And that an abstract of the list of signatures, duly attested, be forwarded to the Secretary of the Anti-Transportation Society in Sydney.

That the Chairman be requested also to write by the earliest and quickest opportunity to Messrs. Lowe and Michie, to inform these gentlemen that the South Australian petition will be forwarded to them by the first direct ship, in order that they may attach these petitions to the other Australasian memorials, and present them together to Her Majesty the Queen and both Houses of the Imperial Parliament. John Morphett, Chairman; Bryce Ross, Acting Secretary.

MULTUM IN PARVO.

(From late Australasian papers.)

An old colonists' festival, in honour of the pioneers of the province, was given in Adelaide on the 28th March. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. H. Fisher, and nearly all the leading men of South Australia appear to have been present. Six hundred sat down to the dinner.—A "morticing machine," having been introduced by some builders at Adelaide, the carpenters had "struck," and determined not to work where one of them was employed.—A public dinner was being got up in Melbourne for St. George's Day.—The Kangaroo Station, the property of Mr. Cruikshank, and forming one of the Crawford Stations, has been sold, says the Portland Guardian, we hear to a Mr. Donald M'Kinnon; the sheep at fifteen shillings per head, and 1000 head of cattle at thirty shillings.—A deputation, consisting of Messrs. Hickson, Johnston, Fitzherbert, Waitt, and Helham, had an interview with his Excellency the Governor-in-Chief, on the subject of the proposed Bank to be established in Wellington, to be called the Union Bank of New Zealand. His Excellency promised the deputation to introduce at the next session in the General Legislative Council of New Zealand an Ordinance for incorporating the Company, and suggested that they should apply for powers to enable them to increase their capital and extend their operations to other settlements in New Zealand.—Sir James Stirling, in a private letter, states (says the Hobart Town Britannia) that it having been determined by the home Government to appoint to each colony a commissioner to whom the Executive might refer in place of waiting for the opinion of the Secretary of State upon any question which may arise, he has offered his services to fill the office in this colony; or if the authorities decline accepting this proposal, he has offered to contract to supply the Admiralty with timber to the amount of £100,000, provided he is allowed convict labour. Even should neither of these offers be accepted, he contemplates paying us a visit of some duration.—At Hobart Town, Mr. Stonor resumes office as Solicitor-General, and Mr. F. Smith, jun., reverts to his former offices of Crown Solicitor and Clerk of the Peace.—The following resolution, adopted by the committee nominated to enquire into the delay in bringing the new Constitutional Bill into operation in Van Diemen's Land, has been forwarded by the chairman to the Colonial Secretary, in reply to a communication received from that functionary: "That the chairman be requested to state, in reply to the letter of the Colonial Secretary, that this committee determines so far to vindicate their own position as to assert that they do not consider the public meeting, nor the committee appointed by that meeting, 'a self-constituted body,' as offensively designated by the Colonial Secretary; that this committee consider the letter of the Colonial Secretary discourteous and uncalled for, and decline to hold any further communication with a Government which treats contemptuously the respectful application of a public meeting on a legitimate subject of enquiry."

ANNUAL LICENSING MEETING.

The licensing meeting was yesterday resumed pursuant to adjournment. Present, the Attorney-General, Mr. Allen, Mr. Flood, Dr. Mitchell, the Superintendent of Police, the Crown Prosecutor, Mr. O'Neill Brenan, Mr. H. H. Browne, and the Police Magistrate. On the motion of the Attorney-General the Police Magistrate was called to the chair.

The minutes of the meeting on the 15th instant were read. It appeared however that they had not been authenticated by the signature of the Mayor, when the Attorney-General observed that they should have been written out at least in time for signature on the following morning, to which the Chairman replied that the Mayor's instructions were that the minutes should be entered in time for signature at the next meeting: but in any case the clerical strength of the department would not allow of the immediate making up of the minutes – two clerks had been withdrawn, while the business of the office had doubled itself.

On the subject of the visitation of the houses for which licenses had been applied for, it appeared that some of the magistrates had declined the duty assigned them, and that all the houses had not yet, in consequence, been inspected.

Mr. Flood said that he was one of those appointed, and he had not thought it proper to inspect the houses in the district assigned to him. He had read the Act, and he was at a loss to know under what clause the magistrates assumed to themselves the power of visiting the houses at all, or what the utility; for by the 18th section it was declared who only should be entitled to object to any application, and if magistrates had objections to offer, they could only be received from them as from any other citizen, on the floor of the Court, or in the witness box.

The Attorney-General called Mr. Flood to order. The justices had not come there for the purpose of listening to a lecture on the policy of the Licensing Act, or to raise up a wall against which to knock their own heads. The course was adopted by resolution of the justices at their last meeting, when, if Mr. Flood had been in his place, he might then have offered his objections with propriety; but now his observations were totally irrelevant to the business before them, and therefore an unnecessary waste of time.

Mr. Flood said his only object was to state the reasons which induced him to decline the task assigned to him.

The Attorney-General said, that no doubt every magistrate had a right to act on his own opinion of his duty and the law, and perhaps Mr. Flood would allow him the same freedom. He for one, would not consent to grant licenses to persons of improper character, or for houses which were deficient of the accommodations required by the terms of the Act; and there was no means of arriving at a knowledge of these facts but by inspection.

Mr. Allen said, that according to what would appear to be Mr. Flood's interpretation of the law, it was only necessary for any person to make application and the license goes as a matter of course, irrespective of either his character or the accommodation which his house may afford. He, on the contrary, considered it necessary that the magistrates should first be satisfied on both these points.

Mr. Flood was about to make some further remarks, when he was interrupted by

The Chairman, who said that it might be a point for argument at the licensing meeting next year, but at present it had been formally determined by the resolution of the Justices in meeting assembled. It was but a waste of time, therefore, to discuss the measure which had been already adopted and acted upon.

On the motion of Mr. M'Lerie, seconded by Mr. Browne, it was resolved that no license should be granted unless the applicant were present. The contrary course was adopted last year, granting all applications against which no objections had been filed, whether the person were present or not, and considerable inconvenience had arisen in consequence. It was not intended by this to deprive those persons of their license who may not be in attendance to-day, but they would stand over for a future opportunity.

The list was then proceeded with from No. 1 to No. 99, both inclusive. The following were granted:—Nos. 3, 9, 14, 15, 16, 17, 22, 23, 34, 39, 45, 46, 53, 59, 83, 85, 89, 93, and 95. Nos. 49 and 50—two applications for one house—were postponed. The only application on which there was any discussion to-day was that of Mr. Oatley, of the Sportsman, Pitt-street and Goulburn-street, which however was finally granted, with an intimation that it would be necessary for him to use greater circumspection in the management of his house, especially in regard to selling on Sunday.

The Session adjourned until noon to-day, when they will commence with No. 100, John Hawkins, York-street.

GEOGRAPHY OF NEW ZEALAND.

(From the Wellington Spectator.)

On the Acheron's return from the Southward we gave a brief account of the progress of her survey of the West Coast of the Middle Island; we are persuaded that the following particulars, which we have since been able to collect,—though somewhat detached—will be perused with interest by our readers:—The Acheron's survey of the South and Western Coasts of New Zealand commenced, during her late cruise, in the vicinity of Foveaux Strait, to where she had completed on a former occasion. It included an examination of all the extensive sounds or inlets of the sea which, commencing with Preservation Harbour terminate at the Milford Haven of the present published maps of New Zealand; from thence northwards towards Cape Farewell her examination was more partial, but included a visit to Jackson's or the Open Bay of Arrowsmith's map, which is the only anchorage for vessels in this long range of coast. Of the numerous sounds which came under the observation of the Acheron and her hired tender we were only thoroughly acquainted with one, the Dusky Bay of Cook, that illustrious navigator having described it in the fullest manner, and we understand his description has been corroborated in every particular by the officers of the Acheron. Preservation and Chalky Harbours have appeared in the charts; but several remarkable inlets between Dusky Bay and Milford Haven were only known to the few whalers and sealers who frequented that coast. We learn that the description by Cook of Dusky Bay applies generally to all these inlets: narrow arms of the sea running from ten to twenty and thirty miles inland, with very deep water, one hundred to two hundred fathoms having occasionally been obtained, and very few anchorages for shipping, and those of the most confined character, while in the words of Cook, "inland nothing was to be seen but barren mountains with huge craggy precipices, disjoined by valleys, or rather chasms, frighful to behold."

In the vicinity of Milford Haven the stupendous features of this mountainous character increased, and we are informed that the entrance of this sound, for it ill deserves the name of a haven, is a short half mile in width, with perpendicular cliffs on either side attaining an altitude of five thousand feet. The natural productions of this remarkable tract of country appear to be limited, though we learn that a great addition has been made to our knowledge of the habits of the kiwi and ground parrot (kakapo) peculiar to New Zealand, as also of the plants and geological character of the country. No natives were seen between Foveaux Straits and Open or Jackson's Bay, but there is reason to attach some credit to the assertions of the natives of the Middle Island that a tribe or tribes foreign in manners and customs to our friends the Maories exist in these wild regions.

From Open or Jackson's Bay northward, the country assumes a different character; these stupendous mountain ranges recede further from the sea coast, and we come upon the countries described by Messrs. Heaphy and Brunner: between Jackson Bay and the river Grey, bordering the sea coast, we are informed the loftiest mountain in New Zealand presented itself to the Acheron's crew, attaining an elevation of 12,000 feet.

The country recently surveyed by the Acheron has been the terra incognita of New Zealand, and the accounts we have hitherto received of it have been of a very vague and general nature. The labours of this surveying expedition will, in this respect, prove of incalculable advantage to the colony in supplying information where it was most desired, in making known the general features of the country, and in putting the settlers, at length, in possessing of an elaborate and most accurate survey of the coasts of these islands, supplying all the information requisite for the development of the future coasting trade of the colony. We may in conclusion add, that the observations that have been made either by the officers of the Acheron, or by preceding voyagers, all tend to confirm the general accuracy of the surveys and descriptions of that illustrious navigator, Captain Cook, whose fame is so intimately connected with New Zealand.

The Toll Case.—The police magistrates said, yesterday, in reference to the case against the keeper of the toll-gate at Grose Farm, an outline of which appeared in yesterday's Herald, that after looking over the evidence, and the cases cited by the complainant's counsel, he had come to the conclusion of making no order in the matter, leaving the parties, if they considered it necessary, to apply to a higher tribunal.

The Corporation at Fault.—Mr. William Lucas appeared yesterday before Alderman Egan and Mr. Dowling charged by one Connor, a bailiff in the employ of the Sydney Corporation, with having assaulted him while, in the execution of his duty, he was making a levy for the city rates. In cross examination by Mr. Redman, Connor said the warrant under which he was acting at the time of the assault, did not bear the corporate seal of the city. Mr. Redman proceeded to argue thereupon that the document called a warrant, was in fact, no warrant at all, the corporate seal being an indispensable requisite to stamp such documents with validity. There was no person present to argue the point with Mr. Redman, and their worships did not feel disposed to decide the point raised by Mr. Redman without an opportunity of first looking into the question: they therefore postponed the case. Can it be that the civic authorities consider it too much trouble to protect their officers, or are they so indifferent to the rights of the citizens, that no professional gentleman was instructed to uphold the validity of a document delivered by them into the hands of a bailiff for enforcing payment of a just debt? It would be only proper for some member of that body at its next meeting to require an explanation of such remissness; for if ever a case occurred in which it was necessary for a City Solicitor to be instructed this unquestionably is one.

Stealing from a Dwelling.—On Wednesday afternoon, an aged female went into Mrs. Dundas's shop, George-street, and requested permission to change her dress, for which purpose she was shown into Mrs. Dundas's bedroom. Having accomplished the change, she departed, but shortly afterwards, Mrs. Dundas missed a shawl from her chamber, which no other person than the old lady whom she had accommodated had had any opportunity of taking.

Newtown Races.—(Van Diemen's Land.—A correspondent has forwarded us the following particulars respecting the two first days' racing:—First Day, Wednesday, April 9:—The Maiden Plate was won by Who'd have Thought It; Little John, second; and Bertha, nowhere. The Town Plate was won by Shadow; first heat, 6m. 5s.; second, 6m. 4sec.; distance, three miles twelve chains. This is the fastest race on record in Van Diemen's Land. Garibaldi made a most excellent race of it, and there can be no doubt he is supposed to be the second best horse in Van Diemen's Land. Shadow's racing qualities almost exceed her owner's expectations. The Criterion Stakes, for which there were six entries, was won by Othello; he was almost considered an outsider here, Olinsko and Harkaway being great favourites. The company was not numerous, but most of the elite of Hobart Town were there. The governor honoured the course with his presence. One or two cases of pocketpicking occurred — one detected – Mr. Wilson's cigar case, being mistook by the thief for his pocket book: a short chase took place, and he was captured. Second day, Thursday, April 10.—The Derwent St. Leger was cantered over for by Mr. Blackwell's Deception. The Pony race was won by Mr. Kearney's poney, name unknown. The Publicans' Purse, which was expected to have been the best race of the meeting, was not as was anticipated; there were seven entries—four horses were drawn. The race laid between Modesty, Patient, and Hero: Patient won the first heat. There was a protest entered against Patient for taking the running away from Modesty, but, luckily for the northern horses, it came to nothing, as Hero took the second and third heat, much to the dissatisfaction of the Hobartonians. The company was more numerous to-day, but the races went off badly for the want of horses to contest them.—Launceston Examiner.

FRAUD.—A jeweller named Sandre, residing in Castlereagh-street, was on Wednesday apprehended by Inspector Burrows for having fraudulently offered for sale as Californian gold a quantity of spurious metal. Yesterday the charge came on for hearing before Alderman Egan, who after hearing the depositions of several witnesses remanded the prisoner until this morning.

THE CENSUS.—It appears from the census just taken that the population of the township of Wollombi stands as follows:—59 males, 48 females; total, 105: of the district (township included), 599 males, 401 females; total 1000. Of these there are 590 Church of England, 71 Church of Scotland, 30 Wesleyan, other Protestant 1, Roman Catholic 307, Mahometan 1. —Maitland Mercury.

Mr. Samuel Lyons reminds publicans, spirit merchants, and others, that he sells, this day, at the Stores of Robert How, Esq., Lower George-street, at 11 o'clock precisely, Tennant's and Harvey's porter in hogsheads, Tennant's and Harvey's bottled ale and brown stout in 3 and 4 dozen casks.—Communicated.

THE CITY OF SYDNEY.

I believe it will be unnecessary for me to express my opinion that there is more immorality in Sydney than in any other English town of the same population in her Majesty's dominions.—Braim's New South Wales.

See also Lord Ashley's slanderous notice of the colony recently published.

Although from other lands I came across the ocean vast,
In thee fair City of the South my boyhood's days were pass'd;—
Beneath thy skies so freely bright friends found I many an one,—
And in thy wave took full delight, and in thy glorious sun;—
And with unmeasured scorn I hear such slanders cast on thee,
First City of this mighty land,—Queen of the Southern Sea.

Fair birth-place of my Loved one,—my children's native land,—
Thou shalt not bear a wrong like this from any scribbler's hand,
For if no Son of thine will deign to answer such a foe,
Fair City! I, a sojourner, will even deal the blow;
Will say his lips were mean as false, who leaving thy kind throng,
Amidst our British brethren strove to do thee such a wrong.

'Tis true no palaces of light may here on Misery glare,—
No halls give up their hideous sounds of desperate despair,—
No hapless women seek thy wave their broken hearts to hide,—
No famish'd maniac here be cross'd by callous-hearted pride,—
No prisons clank with galling chains by guilt and sorrow worn,—
No wretch, however lost he be, be trampled as forlorn!

* No Father here his bosom's mate, and children "born in shame,"—
Would first with murderous hand despatch, then wrap their home in flame;
No Father bid the unwed wife, still urging, first to shed
His infant's blood, before that he the mother wrong'd would wed;
Such crimes are Britain's own, and we may scorn the poor applause,
That we have ne'er so foully sinn'd against great Nature's laws.

And though the pedagogue may scrawl, the aristocrat defame,—
We still, thank God! have not yet learn'd the "old hand's" guilt and shame;—
Let him whose memory takes him back to London's pride and woe,—
Say if her gorgeous mantle hides no festering wounds below;—
No leprous taints, no Godless sins, which coming times must purge,
Whilst thou, a "new Cybele," smil'st along the flashing surge.

Yet even if our vices were co-equal with her own,
Say, by whose hands in this fair land the "dragon's teeth" were sown:
It seems the "very arch fiend's mock" to talk to us of crime,
Which she, with her unrighteous laws, engender'd in old time:—
Which she with all her wide renown,—yet not unsullied fame,
Unto her stricken striving child, should blush in tears to name.

What!—shall the Leopard scorn it's cub for spots upon it's hide?
The Ethiop for his clouded skin his fiery son deride?
The Lion, for the parasites which soil his thunderous mane,
His own fierce offspring of the wild regard with rash disdain?
Peace! Pharisee! we'll show the World whate'er our outward skin,
Nor spot, nor cloud, nor parasite, defiles our souls within.

* * * * * * * *

Fair City! though I joy to see thy marts and mansions bright,
In all the wealth of bounteous heaven my soul feels more delight;—
The air I breathe is full of life, and makes the pulse so thrill,
That we'rt thou even Slavery's home, thou we'rt an Eden still:—
But Freedom now begins to feel throughout this glorious land,
That thou we'rt made her happier home by an Almighty hand.

'Tis night divine! entranced I stand upon this gleaming hill.
It seems as if the City's pulse in tranquil hope stood still:
So quiet, yet so beautiful,—the stars seem dreaming too
And steadfast in the many depths of heaven's eternal blue:—
Along the winding shores I see, and in each peaceful street,—
The manly and the lovely in the balmy moonlight meet.

'Tis day again, and in thy streets glad faces meet my eyes,—
Commerce and art pursue their tasks beneath thy sunny skies:—
While women with their looks of love make even toil seem gay,—
And children undepraved appear, like angels on their way:—
I gaze around and nothing meet, but what may well be told,—
That our young City need not bow to any of the old.

PARRAMATTA.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.—The Annual Vestry Meeting for the election of Church-wardens, auditing accounts, and other business connected with the church, took place on Easter Tuesday last. The meeting was well attended. The Rev. H. H. Bobart, M.A., in the chair. The following gentlemen were elected Church-wardens, viz., Mr. John M'Manis, for the parish; Mr. F. Watkins, for the trustees; and Mr. Edward Rowling, for the Clergyman. The following salaries were voted. Organist, £35; clerk, £25, and sexton, £20 Amount collected during the year, £151 6s.; disbursed, £151 1s. 4d.; balance in hand, 4s. 8d. It was stated by the treasurer that the building fund amounted to £450. A letter was read from the Colonial Secretary, informing the trustees that no assistance could be granted by the Government towards the repairs. It was resolved that the most strenuous exertions should be used for obtaining funds by the 1st July next, when a meeting should be called for the purpose of examining and adopting plans, and proceed with the alterations and repairs; in the mean time the spires should be temporarily repaired.

PARISH OF MARSFIELD.—On Easter Tuesday last, the Annual Vestry Meeting for the election of Church-wardens, and other business connected with the parish, took place in the Vestry of All Saints' Church, at noon, the Rev. W. F. Gore, B.A., in the chair. Mr. Stathem, (the people's Church-warden,) read the minutes of last meeting, and Captain King was called upon to act as auditor of the accounts for the past year. It appeared that £82 9s. 6d. had been collected as pew-rents during the year, and the balance in hand was £72 12s. 6d., leaving a debt on the Church of £3000. A letter from the Bishop's Secretary, appointing Captain King trustee, in the place of the late Mr. Anderson, J.P., was read by the Chairman. Mr. Woolls, before proposing the trustees' Church-warden, said that he felt his present position a very uncomfortable one, and with the permission of the parishioners would resign. (No, no.) He believed that the alterations in the service were contrary to the wishes of his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, and to the practice of the great body of the clergy in England. He did not think that any clergyman was justified in reviving obsolete rights without competent authority. Whether that authority rested with the Bishop of the diocese, the Archbishop of the province, or the Convocation, he could not say; but he (Mr. W.) was perfectly satisfied with the principle laid down by the Archbishop in his answer to the people of Plymouth. These changes had been introduced by the Tractarian clergy, seventy of whom had already joined the Church of Rome,—and he must say, that if the principle of the rubric was to be adhered to strictly, many customs must be revived which were decidedly of Popish origin, such as the vestments used in the second year of Edward VI., and the burning of candles during divine service. Rites and ceremonies were matters indifferent, but when they became a stumbling block to the weaker brethren they should be discontinued. He thought that the case of All Saints was particularly hard, because the people had never been consulted from first to last, and the changes had been persevered in against every remonstrance. He (Mr. W.) disliked the state of things, and all that he asked was permission to resign, and he would never attend another meeting on the subject.—The Chairman (the Rev. W. Gore) said that Mr. Woolls was clearly out of order in making the remarks which he had done, but he (Mr. G.) had not interrupted him, as he wished every one to have a fair hearing. There was no proposition before the meeting, but he trusted that he might be permitted to reply to some things which had fallen from the last speaker. With respect to his resignation, it was a matter for the trustees to decide, and not the present meeting, but he must say that the changes alluded to in the service were not innovations, for he had often heard the offertory read in Ireland when there was no communion. The Chiarman then commented at some length on a letter which Mr. Woolls had addressed to the parishioners, and he said that he regarded the proceeding as injudicious. He would not deny any thing that had been stated respecting the Rev. J. Walker, but he thought that the inference to be drawn from the document was unfavourable to him (the present incumbent.) He was quite ready to have Divine Service on some evening during the week if the parish would pay the expenses of lamps, but he did not consider it his duty to give up service on Saints' days. This, he believed, had already been stated, if not in writing, at least in course of conversation, and he thought that the allusion to the circumstances was unfair. (Mr. Woolls remarked that on looking over the papers he could find no such statement.) It might not be in the correspondence, but it was clearly implied. Having made this explanation he trusted the meeting would proceed to business.—Mr. Woolls proposed, and the Rev. R. Forrest seconded Mr. Bettington as Church-warden for the Trustees.—Captain King differed from many remarks respecting the offertory. He was opposed as much as any one to innovations, but he thought that no one ought to object to the reading of the prayer for the Church militant. He thought that there was very little to complain of in the service of All Saints, and as for the collection, it was made at the door. Many concessions had been made to the people, and they should now be satisfied. He believed that the clergyman was only anxious to carry out the intentions of the Rubric. He must say that he attended the services of All Saints with much pleasure, and he trusted that he had derived benefit from them. He had not heard any strange doctrines, nor had he noticed any additional ceremony, with the exception of the prayer for the Church militant, which was read at the communion table. When he was a boy, he had heard it from the pulpit.—Mr. Stathem stated that before proceeding any further, he would call the attention of the meeting to a resolution passed last Easter Tuesday, respecting the salaries of the lay officers, which had been withheld. He begged to propose as a compensation to them the following sums, viz.: Clergyman's house-rent, £12; organist, £12; and clerk, £12.—Mr. Hardy, P.M., said he could not regard the services of All Saints as the services of the Church of England, and if any one asked him his opinion of Mr. Gore, he should say he was a Puseyite. His father was a clergyman of the Church, he had attended Cathedral services, and he was a member of the University, but he had never seen any thing like the ceremonies of All Saints. He attended the Church because he lived in the parish, but he did not attend from inclination. Mr. Gore knew, everybody knew, that these innovations were of Tractarian origin. If he went to Church by himself he would always retire upon the reading of the offertory, but out of regard to his family he remained.—Mr. Stewart inquired why service was not performed on the 5th of November?—Captain King said, that such services were not read in the colonies, as they were intended solely for the United Kingdom.—Mr. Shackles proposed Mr. Statham, as the people's churchwarden, and made some remarks relative to the present mode of performing service, which he said was contrary to anything that he had seen in England.—Mr. Bell seconded the resolution.—The Chairman nominated Mr. Ardagh as the clergyman's churchwarden.—Mr. Ardagh begged to remark that he had been as much opposed as any one to the offertory, but he was now a convert to Mr. Gore's opinions. (A voice "you said you would knock the Cross off the church"). Whatever his views had been, he was determined to support the clergyman. After some conversation, the following salaries were voted for the ensuing year, viz., sexton, £13; clerk, £12; organist, £15; and towards minister's dwelling, £12.—Mr. Hardy, P.M., moved that a clerk's desk be erected, and put in the customary place under the clergyman. He had never seen a parish church without a clerk's desk, and he thought it was absurd to vote a salary for a clerk without a desk in which to place him. (Great laughter.)—Mr. Carson seconded the resolution.—Mr. Ardagh moved as an amendment, that no clerk's desk be erected. The amendment was seconded by Captain King, and being negatived, the original motion was declared to be carried.—Mr. Woolls moved, and Mr. Shackles seconded a resolution against the introduction of obsolete forms into the service of the Church, contrary to the wishes of His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury.—Mr. Ardagh moved an adjournment of the meeting, which was seconded by Mr. Statham, who although agreeing with the resolution, said, that as he had already protested against these things, he did not see any object in doing so again. Captain King spoke in favour of the amendment, and Mr. Hardy in favour of the original motion. After some discussion, during which Captain King left the meeting, the amendment was said to be lost.

NEWS FROM THE INTERIOR.

(From our Correspondent.)

BATHURST.

VAGRANCY.—On Saturday last, a man named James Freeny, who had at some previous portion of his career lost one of his legs, was brought before the Bench, and sentenced to three months' imprisonment, with hard labour, as being an idle and disorderly character. It appears that on the Thursday previous he made his appearance at the Rankin and Piper Inn, and being refused drink, began to use his crutch in a menacing manner—so much so, that it was found necessary to take it from him, and the police being sent for, he was secured by them, and taken in a wheelbarrow to the watch-house.

CHARGE OF CATTLE STEALING.—John Connors, John Shea, and Henry Cassidy, have been twice remanded by our Bench on a charge of cattle stealing. The circumstances of the case, as far as they have at present appeared, are shortly these:—On Wednesday last, Mr. Joseph West, of O'Connell Plains, saw two head of cattle belonging to him at his own place; they were a fat cow half gone with calf, and a heifer, also fat. On Thursday, he missed them, and the same evening saw some of his cattle coming from the direction of the prisoner Connor's; he never knew his cattle make for that quarter before, and his suspicions being aroused, he procured from Mr. Lowe a warrant to search Connor's place, and on Friday proceeded with the O'Connell Plains constable to execute the warrant. Connors was not in the hut, Shea and Cassidy were. On searching they found in a bag the kidney and kidney fat of a full grown beast, and also of a younger beast. In another bag they found two hearts, one small and the other large, and on a hook the skinned tail of a small beast. Two large casks of beef were also found, the greater portion of it having been newly salted. The head of a small beast denuded of the skin and distinguishing marks was also discovered. Connors, on coming in was asked what beast he had killed, upon which he made answer that it was a bullock; but a half-grown calf was found, by which it was apparent it must have been a cow. They brought the prisoners into Bathurst, and on Saturday constables Finnerty and M'Clure went out, and on raking among the ashes in the fire-place, found the remains of the head and shank bones of a beast, they having been nearly consumed by the fire. A large pot of beef fat, and a tin dish of rendered fat, were also taken possession of by the police, and brought in with all the other parts before mentioned. On Sunday, another constable was sent, accompanied by Mr. West, and a blackfellow; discovering a dray track they followed it about 500 yards to a fire, which was still burning, and where apparently the hides and feet had been consumed. Two very small bits of hide were found at the edge of the ashes, and the hair on them agreed in colour with that of the larger beast supposed to have been stolen. Some burnt pieces of bone were also found, which appear to have belonged to the foot of a beast. Should no further evidence be obtained, it is supposed that there is sufficient at present to cause the committal of the prisoners.

RACING.—On Monday last, a match came off on the flat by the river, between Mr. De Clouet's chesnut gelding Steeltrap, and Mr. Minehan's brown gelding Bay Lottery, which was won by the former by about half a length. Steeltrap was rode by Gaffer, and Bay Lottery by Wallace. The distance was two miles, being one event, twice round the course. The amount at issue was only £10, but a goodly number of persons assembled to witness the race.—A match for £25 aside, between Mr. De Clouet's Tomboy, and Mr. Minehan's Bay Lottery, has since been agreed upon, and will come off on the Bathurst Race-course on Monday next. Races also come off on Monday at Clear Creek and O'Connell Plains, and similar sport was projected to take place at the Long Swamp, on the Fish Riv r, the same day.

ANNUAL LICENSING MEETING.—At the annual licensing meeting on the 15th instant, a very strong muster of magistrates took place. All the applications which appeared in the Herald of the 7th instant were granted, with the exception of the three following, namely—Simon Bulger, Piper-street, Bathurst; Richard Collier, Reedy Creek; and John Minehan, Durham-street, Bathurst.

CHURCHWARDENS ELECTED.—At a meeting held at All Saints' Church on Tuesday last, the following gentlemen were elected Churchwardens, namely:—Mr. J. S. Home, chosen by the Rev. Thomas Sharpe; Mr. T. J. Hawkins, by the Trustees; and Mr. J. Tingcombe, by the pewholders.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

A WORD FOR THE STATES.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—Relying on your regard to fair play for the insertion of this letter, I beg to offer a few words in behalf of the much abused United States. Much abused they are and have been indiscriminately from Rhode Island to California by the would-be aristocrats of this colony, and as far as regards California, by yourselves. I am surprised that any man in your Legislative Assembly should be allowed, without contradiction, to stigmatise a great and a Christian country as a land of disgusting ruffianism and black slavery. Is it not known, or is it conveniently forgotten, that between the north and the south, the free and the slave states, their exists as great a difference in morals, education, feelings, and objects, as there can between England and Spain. Ought not the free states, who in their righteous resistance to the aggressions of the south, risked the event even of a civil war, (only averted perhaps by the sudden death of Calhoun)—ought not they to be exempted from the charge of abetting slavery? And is it HERE in this colony, that the descendants of the pilgrim fathers, who at this day make a large proportion of the population of the northern states—than whom (as proved by the statistics of crime) a more moral people do not exist—that these should be described as "disgusting ruffians."

And with regard to California, gentlemen, all the doleful statements, extracts, &c., in your paper, are effectually answered (to the common sense of the common people) by a glance at your own shipping list, where you will see the returned adventurers by hundreds (not to say thousands) taking down their families and their all. Then, as to its moral state, I would hint that you have sent your full quota of felons from Sydney; briefly, I know that in August last, out of sixteen awaiting trial for serious crime in San Francisco, twelve were from Sydney. At the second great fire, out of seventy in custody for thieving, forty-eight were from Sydney, &c. On the whole, I may, I think, recommend to your attention an old proverb, which, notwithstanding its extreme mustiness, is of the highest authority. It refers to a mote in your brother's eye, &c. And now, in conclusion, let me ask any candid person, to lay his hand (not on his heart, but) on his throat, and fancy what would be the state of things here, even with a strong and old established government, were there a range of placers discovered at Parramatta, I believe British bayonets, as well as shovels would be "off to the diggings," and in full use more ways than one. And then you would find an extempore militia, extempore juries, and Judge Lynch in such circumstances not to be despised.

Yours, very truly,
A CITIZEN OF THE STATES.

April 18.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—There are several mistakes in your account of the inquest on James Battrey, which I should be obliged by your correcting. The child is represented as having been seen struggling in the water and crying "Dada! Dada!" The facts are not so; the child was missed and another elder boy sent to look for him; he saw his brother in the water, and it was he who called to his father; the father rushed down at once, and the child was taken out of the water apparently dead, not having been seen to struggle at all. He was lying apparently dead on the wharf in his wet clothes for several minutes before a medical man could reach the spot.

I should not trouble you with this correction were it not that people are generally too apathetic in attempting to resuscitate the apparently drowned, and if it were believed that a child taken out of the water even while able to struggle and cry out could not be resuscitated, it might prevent many from attempting to do anything in similar cases.

I am, Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
R. G.

Sydney, April 24.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—A writer in your journal of a late date has treated on the ravages committed by the wild dog of the colony in her northern provinces, and advocates some legislatorial measure for their extermination. Permit me to observe that these sanguinary pests of the sheepfold are to be extirpated with the greatest ease and at very little cost much more speedily than any act of the kind alluded to would be likely to pass our chambers. One ounce of strychnia in chrystals, it being less subject to adulteration in that state, will clear any station in the colony. This remedy may, or ought to be, purchasable in Sydney for thirty or thirty-five shillings. So that whilst my old friends north of the Murrumbidgee talk of wild dogs, they might get rid of them. Strychnia has been tried in this district with astonishing success. A "brush" is a thing now to be wondered at. The result to myself alone has been a saving of at least £350 a year, not to speak of the annoyance and torture I am relieved from.

The bait for a dog is a piece of fresh meat of about eight ounces, into which a small quantity of the poison has been inserted. This suspended from an over-hanging branch, beyond the reach of wild cats, by a thin piece of twine, under a "nosable" piece of carrion, is almost certain to secure any particular dog. But to "smash the breed" without mercy, attach a dead sheep, or kangaroo, or emu, or bullock's paunch, or any carion to be obtained readily, to the axle of a light cart, and at sundown (to cheat the crows) take a road, or a cattle track, through the parts principally infested, and as you go along leave a bait, in some such manner as I have described, at intervals of a mile or thereabouts. We generally drop a few pieces of unpoisoned meat around the bait, to arrest the dog in his rapid career on scent. It will be necessary to take up the baits which remain untouched at daylight, if you wish to economise. This is a simple way of effectually ridding a station of a most outrageous pest. I may observe, also, that strychnia is found to be an admirable specific in attacks of the eagle hawk during the lambing season. No later in fact than this morning, I destroyed two in about ten minutes, which I observed hovering over the lambs of some imported ewes. Touch the heart and liver of a dead lamb with a pinch of the poison, and your success is certain. The extermination of the wild dog instead of being a matter for the interference of the Legislature, is in fact simply a question between the settler and his merchant, or apothecary. If the writers on the foregoing subject were to urge upon the legislature the necessity for an act for the compulsory burning of the dead bodies of those animals which die from natural causes in the colony, that killing disease now prevalent in 'the County of Cumberland,' would be arrested. I have stayed the black-leg by such means on the farm adjoining (strange to say!) that very estate of Leppington, on which it is said this new-fangled disease first appeared, and which black-leg broke out spontaneously, no other case at the time being heard of within one hundred miles of us. It is to be hoped, however, that when we have a few more men of common sense in our Councils, and fewer ravings on "patriotism," "rights of the people," &c., we shall have less disease in the country, and the Council reports of the Sydney Herald be worth the perusal. One is almost inclined to think that the "malignant pustule" had its origin some where else than on the estate of Leppington.

Your obedient servant,
H. S. WILLS.

ENGLISH EXTRACTS.

THE ROAST BEEF OF OLD ENGLAND.

(From the Times.)

IT will be seen by our Smithfield report that the Christmas market has been a very dull one. The comparison of the prices on the "great day" for the present and the five previous years leaves the present year the lowest in the scale. Last year was lower than any before, and the present is lower still. The two years stand thus:—

BEEF.

December 16, 1850 ..2s. 6d...3s. 4d...4s. 2d.
December 17, 1849 3s. 6d...4s. 0d...4s. 6d.

MUTTON.

December 16, 1850 ..3s. 0d...3s 10d...4s. 4d.
December 17, 1849 ..3s. 6d...4s. 0d...4s. 6d.

The decline in veal and pork is in much the same proportion. This statement, however, is not the only discouraging feature of the show. A great many fat beasts were turned out unsold at the close of the day, to the no small inconvenience and loss of their owners. Of course the inferior beasts have suffered the greatest depreciation, and in their case, if not in the others, it is impossible to see how they can have been fed with any profit whatever, even that "little" which makes a "mickle" in large operations. The result is considerable disappointment, and graziers were loud in their abuse of free trade, the House of Commons, Sir Robert Peel, and every other person, including ourselves, who is believed to have helped on the introduction of foreign cattle and the repeal of the Corn-laws. Indeed, if the fires of Smithfield could be kindled again, and if the authority of the High Commission could be revived in a select committee of dissatisfied farmers, there would be no lack of heretics ripe for the stake in Protestant estimation.

But, heretics as we are, we must claim that privilege of defence which was not altogether denied even to the victims of the Marian persecution Some of the blame at least must fall on the graziers themselves, and on circumstances over which we have no control. In the first place, the supply was beyond all precedent. No less than 6720 beasts were brought to market on Monday, being 962 more than on the "great day" last year; and no less than 26,800 sheep, being 2800 more than on that occasion. The aggregate quantity of meat brought to market far exceeded that of any previous year. Now, the metropolis only takes what it wants, and cannot sharpen its two million appetites, distend its two million stomachs, and fill its two million pockets to suit the convenience of several thousand graziers. It is for these gentlemen to devise their own remedy for the evil; but an excess in the market will always knock down the price—a result which we have never called otherwise than an evil, when it is the source of actual loss to the agriculturist.

MR. BARBER'S CASE.—In our paper of last week we gave a brief account of a public meeting of the legal profession of Liverpool, Sir George Stephen in the chair, at which, after some very interesting speeches had been made, certain resolutions were unanimously passed declaring the belief of all present in the innocence of Mr. W. H. Barber, the solicitor, who was wrongfully convicted in 1844, and expressing an earnest wish for the restoration to his profession, which is yet resisted by some malicious or prejudiced persons in London. This case has been so often before our readers that they must by this time be as thoroughly acquainted with all the particulars connected with it as we ourselves. We are not, therefore, going to dwell upon it again at any length, but simply to offer one remark as a debt of common justice to the ill-used and unfortunate gentleman, in whose behalf the sympathy of his professional brethren is at last roused. That remark is, that, from the very hour in which Mr. Barber's conviction took place, we have maintained, and never ceased to maintain, through evil report and good report, our full, firm, and unqualified belief of his innocence. We never had a doubt, or the shadow of a doubt, on the subject. We never, indeed, could understand the obliquity of vision of those who thought otherwise. It is, then, no small satisfaction to us that the view which we always took of the affair is now generally adopted. And this satisfaction is increased in a hundred-fold degree when we recollect that, by our continued advocacy of his cause when he was suffering all the horrors of his sentence, we were instrumental, however humbly, by keeping public attention awake, in restoring him to his freedom, his friends, and his country. His lost years it is impossible to recover for him. But we loudly and earnestly join in the demand that he should be forthwith restored to that profession from whose emoluments he has been so long and so cruelly excluded. Finis coronat opus. Justice will only be fully done when that is accomplished.—Liverpool Albion, December 9.

WINGS OF WIRE.—The mystery, the secret of the electric telegraph, is simply this. Two handles served to break and to re-unite the current of the electric spirit; each breakage causes a needle, swinging above the handles, to move. Another similar needle, miles away, moves at the same instant in the same way. Different amounts of motion of this needle are understood to indicate certain letters; and thus the telegraph people talk to one another, by spelling what they have to say, letter by letter. Theirs is a new calling, and a curious one too. They hear the strangest and earliest of news. With hands upon the two handles of the instrument, and a sharp eye upon the dial, the work goes on: it would be in silence but for the noise made by the instrument. "Jerk! jerk!" go the handles, "Chop! chop! chip-chop!" are the sounds heard in response, as a little cylinder moves, and metal meets metal, to break and re-complete the circuit. At all the chief railway-stations on all the chief lines, with one or two exceptions, there are telegraph clerks day and night on duty, ready to indicate the approach or departure of trains, the safe arrival of packets in port, or the sailing of ships on their voyage; to forward newspaper despatches and trade advices; to send up the prices of corn, and to send down the quotations of consols and railway stock; to give orders for stopping thieves, or stopping runaway young ladies; to call doctors to the sick, and relatives to dying beds; to tell how much may be bid for a house at an auction; to let anxious papas know that their families have been increased, and that mamma and the new arrival are "as well as can be expected;" and to tell anxious wives that voyaging husbands "had a bad passage: too tired to come up to-night."—Household Words.

A MOST DELIGHTFUL SITE FOR BUILDING.

To be sold at auction,

BY MR. SAMUEL LYONS

At his Mart,

On WEDNESDAY, 30th instant,

At 11 o'clock precisely,

THE above favoured spot is described in the deeds as "all that piece or parcel of land, situate in the parish of Petersham, containing by admeasurement more or less, being lot 7 of the land beforementioned, and bounded on the south-west by the GLEBE ROAD leading into Sydney, commencing at Mrs. Betts' land, bearing west 47 degrees, north 130 feet 2 inches; on the north-west by lots 5 and 6, bearing north 45 degrees 52 minutes, east 503 feet 6 inches; on the north-east by the CENTRAL CROSS ROAD, bearing east 45 degrees 8 minutes, south 135 feet 11 inches to Mrs. Betts' land; and on the south-east by that land, being a line of fence bearing south 47 degrees, west 513 feet 5 inches to the commencing point.

1 ACRE, 2 ROODS, AND 4 PERCHES,

It is situated on the crown of the hill, adjoining Mrs. Betts' land on one side, as above described, and Mr. Bowden's on the other, and is opposite the residence of George Allen, Esq., M.L.C.

☞ A more charming spot for a gentleman's villa residence is not to be found in the environs of the city.

Also,

A MOST VALUABLE PIECE OF LAND, at the corner of Pitt and Goulburn streets, on which a WEATHER-BOARD COTTAGE is erected, now let at a rental of 10s. per week.

The land is fenced in, and has a frontage of 68½ feet to Pitt-street, and 96 feet to Goulburn street.

☞ Of the very few Corner Building Allotments still remaining vacant in this extensive and improving city, the Auctioneer has now the satisfaction of bringing forward ONE OF THE MOST VALUABLE, which from extent both of frontage and depth, is of that description which must ensure the notice of the moneyed interest of the community.

PITT-STREET, with its numerous first-class buildings and shops, cannot fail to become the principal thoroughfare of the city, as it is almost in a direct line with the CIRCULAR WHARF and the RAILWAY TERMINUS, while Goulburn-street, when carried out to the extent contemplated in a south-easterly direction, will become an important out-let to the Surrey Hills and the adjacent neighbourhood.

The Titles may be inspected at the Office of Messrs. Dunsmure and Longmore, Solicitors, Bligh-street.

Terms liberal.

20 per cent. Cash deposit, the residue by approved Bills, at 4, 8, and 12 months, dated from the day of Sale and bearing Bank interest. 7649

10 SPACIOUS ALLOTMENTS, as per Plan, to be on view at the Auctioneer's.

TITLE—A Grant from the Crown.

QUIT-RENT REDEEMED.

Mr. SAMUEL LYONS has been honoured with instructions to dispose of this highly valuable Property, which occupies a most favourable site for Building, being a retired and pleasant spot for residence. The are in a much admired and elevated position, while the whole of them command a delightful view of the Harbour, and are immediately opposite Balmain and the Balmain road.

THE AREA OF THE GRANT IS 1 ACRE AND 8 PERCHES, being allotment No. 5 of section 92, in the City of Sydney.

The whole frontage to Crown-street is about 160 feet, and the frontage to the Harbour is greater. The depth from Crown-street to the deep water of the Harbour is about 330 feet, and there is a Cottage upon the ground occupied by Mr. Forrest.

The Lots are described on the plan as oflow:—

LOT 1.

A CORNER ALLOTMENT, having 35 feet frontage to CROWN-STREET, and 90 feet frontage on the south to a street (20 feet wide) leading from Crown-street to the waterside allotments.

LOT 2.

A CORNER ALLOTMENT at the rear of lot 1, and adjoining it, having 35 feet frontage on the west, and 90 feet on the south to the street (20 feet wide) leading from Crown-street to the waterside allotments.

LOT 3.

35 feet frontage to CROWN-STREET by a depth of 90 feet.

LOT 4.

35 feet frontage to the street described in Lot 2, by a depth of 90 feet, at the rear of Lot 3.

LOT 5.

35 feet frontage to CROWN-STREET by a depth of 90 feet.

LOT 6.

35 feet frontage to the street described in Lot 2, by a depth of 90 feet, at the rear of Lot 5.

LOT 7.

35 feet frontage to CROWN-STREET, by a depth of 90 feet, adjoining Jones's Buildings, the residence of J. Comrie, Esq.

LOT 8.

30 feet frontage to the street described in Lot 2, by a depth of 90 feet, at the rear of Lot 7, adjoining Jones's Buildings

WATERSIDE ALLOTMENTS.

LOT 9.

76 feet frontage to the street before described—leading from CROWN-STREET, by a depth of about 130 feet to deep water, with a frontage of upwards of 76 feet to DARLING HARBOUR.

This allotment is bounded on the north by the Australian Agricultural Company's Wharf and premises.

LOT 10.

Seventy-six feet frontage to the street (already described) leading from Crown-street, by a depth of about 130 feet to deep water, with a frontage of upwards of 76 feet to

DARLING HARBOUR.

⁎ This allotment is bounded on the south by the premises formerly known as "Duke's" and lately as Boyd's Wharf.

☞ The water side allotments are of great importance, as from the depth of water alongside, they form most valuable sites for Wharf Premises; whilst a more desirable spot cannot be had for private residences than is offered above; for Miller's Point may be said to be almost out of the city, so little is it disturbed by the constant traffic to which other portions are exposed, and yet it is within a convenient distance of any part of Sydney.

THE TITLE IS GUARANTEED;

It may be inspected at the office of Messrs. Dunsmure and Longmore, Solicitors, Bligh-street.

TERMS—LIBERAL.

20 per cent. cash deposit; the residue, by approved bills at 4, 8, and 12 months, dated from day of sale, and bearing bank interest.

WEDNESDAY, 30th APRIL.

A VALUABLE ESTATE AND HOMESTEAD—"SANDAL FARM,"

On Prospect Creek near Landsdowne Bridge, on the Liverpool Road, and within seventeen miles of Sydney, and three miles from the Town of Liverpool, containing 160 acres of land.

MR. SAMUEL LYONS

Is instructed to sell by public auction, at his Mart,

On WEDNESDAY, the 30th day of April, At 11 o'clock precisely,

ALL those 160 Acres on the Banks of Prospect Creek, situate near the junction of the Liverpool Road with the Dog Trap Road, at Landsdowne Bridge, within seventeen miles of the city of Sydney and three of Liverpool.

To give any thing like an adequate description of this really valuable and romantic spot would far exceed the limits of a newspaper advertisement, and the Auctioneer is reluctantly compelled to offer only a brief outline of this unique little property.

The Estate, with the exception of a very small strip, consists of excellent light clayey soil, fit for every purpose of agriculture or horticulture, about fifty acres of which have been cleared and stumped, and are under cultivation—forty acres more have been cleared, ten acres are now in a high state of cultivation, and about eight acres of orchard, containing all kinds of fruit trees of the best and rarest description and in flourishing condition; the remainder of the land is capable of the highest cultivation, being now covered with excellent iron bark timber, and would be the very thing for a model cotton plantation.

On the premises there is a dwelling-house, containing five rooms, with detached kitchen, plastered on the inside and shingled. A cottage or garden house, with two rooms, built of slabs and shingled, and an excellent shed, well shingled, capable of containing twelve tons of hay.

The property is bounded to a considerable extent by the Prospect Creek, which here flows in meandering beauty to George's River, which it joins about a mile or two below the farm. The creek abounds with fish of every description, and a never-failing supply of excellent fresh water is close to the house.

Taken as a whole, there does not exist at this moment a more desirable spot, whether to settle quietly down in the calm enjoyment of easy competence, or as a speculation, which, with prudent management, would bring a sure fortune to the fortunate purchaser, and as it will be positively sold, intending purchasers should inspect the premises, and judge for themselves.

THE TITLE IS FIRST-RATE, commencing with a Grant from the Crown, and no quit-rent.

☞ A plan is on view at the Mart.

⁎ For further particulars apply at the Office of Messrs. Dunsmure and Longmore, Bligh-street.

Four of them are centrally situated in PRINCE-STREET, nearly opposite the "National School" and not far distant from the Flag Staff at Fort Phillip, enjoying the benefits arising from the breeze to which their elevated position constantly exposes them.

The other four houses, in CUMBERLAND-STREET, in the rear of the above, enjoy similar advantages of position, and overlook Sydney Harbour.

☞ Parties desirous of inspecting the Premises, can do so on application to the proprietor, Mr. M'Grath, who occupies Lot 6, in Cumberland-street above described.

MORT AND BROWN

Have received instructions from Mr. Joseph Vickery, who is about leaving Sydney for the interior, to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, George-street,

On TUESDAY, 6th May,

At 11 o'clock,

THE charming Property abovenamed, which comprises Mr. Vickery's present residence, with out-buildings, stables, coach-house, &c., and also two very good cottages on the lower portion of the land. There is also in which are upwards of 300 choice fruit trees, also, ornamental trees and shrubs, and flowers of many kinds.

A WELL-STOCKED GARDEN,

THE PADDOCKS

at the rear are very spacious, at all times luxuriantly grassed, and will easily support a pair of horses and a couple of cows.

Including the hill on the north side of the present fence, and which is sold with the property,

THERE IS 10½ ACRES.

From every portion of which, the most magnificent views are commanded of the ocean on the one hand, and of Sydney, Botany, the North Shore, &c., on the other. The land is highly productive, adapted even for market gardeners' purposes, and from the great and neverfailing abundance of water upon portions of the land, coupled with the great extent of grass for drying ground, the place is peculiarly fitted for

A WOOLWASHING ESTABLISHMENT.

There is also abundance of fine building stone close at hand, and as there are many very beautiful building sites present themselves on various portions of the property, an excellent disposition of capital might be made upon it.

☞ Here is all that a man can want—the glorious breezes fresh from the ocean—a prolific garden—ample food for horses and cows—delightful scenery—healthful and bracing atmosphere—and all within so short a distance of Sydney; besides which the property is daily improving in value, and the road to it not surpassed by any in the colony.
